

My Statement of Purpose

As a veterinarian, I believe it is my purpose to empower my clients with knowledge. It is not my job to convince you of anything, but rather to give you resources to better help your animals move toward health and wholeness.

As a holistic practitioner, I believe that healing is achieved by balancing mind, body and spirit. I have experienced and seen what others might call miracles because it defies our scientific linear way of thinking. I am a deeply spiritual person and believe that healing can occur at accelerated rates relative to the understanding and belief that is possible. I often use positive affirmations as a form of prayer treatment for my patients and I encourage my clients to do the same. We are all energetically connected and pets are very sensitive to these energy patterns. The more you as a guardian can believe healing is attainable, the easier health and wholeness can be achieved in your pet's physical body.

I do not believe in prognosis and I will not give prognosis. I have seen far too many miracles to hold stock in the limitation of statistics. I do not have a crystal ball and there are circumstances and situations far beyond physical evidence how one specific individual animal will handle a particular disease condition or state. DVM does not equal GOD or universal spirit energy. Because this is my belief, I think that prognosis acts only as a limitation to true healing because it is a limitation of belief in the extraordinary.

Other doctors may be concerned with liability issues or protecting clients from "false hope". There is no such thing as false hope. There is only HOPE. In hope there is love, and in love there is hope. Love is the healing catalyst for all living things, especially when you understand the mind, body, spirit connection.

I recognize and respect the triad of our relationship. Your pet cannot tell me where the problem in the physical originates, nor can he/she tell me where it hurts or provide me with a history. The most valuable information I can get as a veterinarian comes from my relationship to you, the pet's guardian.

Accordingly, I am merely a facilitator of healing for animals. I use a variety of modalities to help animals heal themselves. It is their divine essence that is really doing the healing. Likewise, there are many modalities that can help your pet move toward perfect health. I use the modalities which best suite me as a practitioner in the art and science of holistic veterinarian. I use nutrition, nutraceuticals, glandulars, western and eastern herbs, homeopathy, flower essences as well as chiropractics, Reiki energy therapy, cranio-sacral orthopedic manipulations and other energy healing modalities. Healing Hope also offers Reike, acupuncture and traditional Chinese medicine with other practitioners at our clinic.

I have access to many resources and use them to research new and upcoming holistic modalities as well as other specialties. When needed I also refer clients to other practitioners that may assist in facilitating healing. Holistic methods and techniques are vast, and no one could ever be a master of them all. The potential is limitless, and new techniques and methods are being discovered all the time. I just want you as a client to know that I will never give up on your pet's health.

In love and light,

Tamara J. Hebbler, D.V.M.
